

MUST BE WISEST DOG IN TOWN

Canine Knew a Few Tricks About
King Street Trolley
Service.

One of the cleverest canines that ever walked on four legs gave an exhibition of sagacity to people who rode on a street car along King street on Monday evening, that deserves him a place in the side show if not even in the main tent of Barnum's circus.

At Nuuanu street a man with a small brown dog stood waiting for the electric car. The dog tried to mount the car with his master but failed. He raced along then until the car came to a standstill again at Fort street. This time he made another jump for the car but his head struck a lady's skirts and he again fell back in the street while the electric current drove the car along. Fido was up in a second and again racing after the car. He got to Alakea street long before the car did and stood waiting at the corner where the car usually stopped. Another dog interfering caused him another failure. Then he sped quickly to the switch up near Punchbowl street where the electric cars always stop and when the car came along succeeded in getting safely aboard. It is said that this same dog plays the same game every night and always succeeds in finding a place on the car before it reaches Punchbowl street.

Chester Doyle stopped a runaway last evening at the intersection of Beretania and Nuuanu streets after the driver, a Japanese, had been thrown out of a brake. He may have to be shot.

When Rev. W. D. Westervelt looked for his horse and buggy last night after leaving the meeting of the Buckeye Club at Dr. Rodgers' residence on Kinau street, they were not to be seen where they had been left. It is believed that some one deliberately untied the animal and drove down town, and then sent the horse adrift.

Half-tone and since cuts made at the Gazette office. If you have a good photograph you may be sure of a good cut.
